What do these women have in common? They are all wearing mind control devices on their heads. It's meant not just to control their thoughts and actions, but that of those around them, demonstrating their submission. Also see this and see this for those articles. More on the Muslims at the end.

Until a vaccine is developed, this is just something we have to accept if we have any desire for the economy and leisure freedoms to be restored to a semblance of the past norm. After a vaccine comes, those who are immunized should have their life mostly back to normal.

Post of some random commenter on Toronto Star article.

Following Content Involves Speculation

This should go without saying, but I don't know 100% that this is what they have in mind. Am trying to make sense of otherwise bizarre and random series of events. So take everything you read from that perspective.

This may come off as alarmist, but will address it anyway. After seeing events unfold, it's impossible to believe that events unfolding are not being done for public SAFETY, but for public CONTROL instead.

It's really brilliant strategy. Shut down entire sectors of society and strip away civil rights. Inflict mental, financial and psychological stress to such a degree that people will be desperate to end it. BY end it, this means go back to the "new normal" as they call it, but ceding that certain rights will be gone forever.

Why do this? If people are willing to wear masks full time (and accept the health risks associated with them), then they will submit to nearly anything. Seeing widespread use in public will have the psychological effect of convincing doubters that there is a real health emergency.

Of course, there is a self-fulfilling prophecy element here. Wearing masks for a long time can cause breathing problems, or make existing ones worse. As such, it may be reported that more people are getting sick, presumably of this virus. Hence the need for more draconian measures.

When other more drastic events happen, such as protests over “systemic racism” across the Western World, the mask issue will get lost in the noise. This of course is done on purpose. Although no government official came out and said publicly this will be permanent, the end result is that it will be. That is of course, unless people stand up to it, and soon.

This is not about public safety, but about public control. And if people are willing to accept a “culture shift” where this becomes normal, what else would they accept?

Does this sound paranoid? Perhaps, but consider the following sections and topics before you decide.

Canada's top doctor says non-medical masks can help stop the spread of COVID-19
The new advice represents a reversal for Tam, who has been reluctant to recommend the use of masks

Theresa Tam had been questioned why this change of heart happened. Cynics suggested she downplayed the situation to buy time so that China (where she’s from) could purchase Canadian supplies. While plausible, there is another possible motive, a psychological one.

If face masks had been made mandatory early on, there would likely have been public backlash. This is especially true since the death waves didn’t materialize. So the opposite approach was taken.

By intentionally causing a shortage of PPE, the Canadian Government can cause a panic in claiming that more cases are coming. This takes longer, but makes the shift a lot less obvious. Of course, people are desperate to get their livelihoods back after months long shutdown.

People can get back to work, but only if they wear a mask. And only if they accept other conditions, and conditions to be named later.

CTV NEWS OTTAWA

> OTTAWA — Ottawa's top doctor suggests a "culture shift" is needed to accept people wearing masks or face coverings during the COVID-19 pandemic.

> Medical Officer of Health Dr. Vera Etches has been recommending Ottawa residents wear masks to protect themselves from COVID-19 for several weeks.

> Now, Ontario's Ministry of Health and Canada's Chief Public Health Officer Dr. Theresa

Tam are recommending Canadians wear non-medical face masks when maintaining a two-metre distance isn't possible.

During a Town Hall with Ottawa's Board of Trade on Wednesday afternoon, Dr. Etches suggested a "culture shift" is needed to accept wearing a face mask to protect yourself and others from COVID-19.

Speaking on Newstalk 580 CFRA's Ottawa Now with Kristy Cameron, Dr. Etches said wearing a mask or face covering is a "new behaviour" Canadians have never been asked to do before.

"It's a new behaviour that we want to make more normal. So shifting the culture," said Dr. Etches.

"Typically, previously before if we saw someone wearing a mask we'd wonder 'oh, are they sick' and be kind of concerned. I think what we're looking for now is to recognize that people are wearing masks to protect others."

Ottawa's Emergency and Protective Services General Manager Anthony Di Monte told reporters on Wednesday afternoon that OC Transpo and Ottawa Public Health are working together on developing a policy for masks on OC Transpo buses and the O-Train.

Di Monte added he doesn't think the city wants to explore a bylaw mandating people wear face masks in public places and businesses.

The Chair of the Board of Health, Councillor Keith Egli says Ottawa wants to get "buy-in" from the public on wearing masks, just like how everyone bought in to the need for physical distancing to reduce the spread of COVID-19.

"We've seen from the actions of our citizens in the past that they get the importance of physical distancing, and I'm confident they'll get the importance of wearing a mask when that's impossible."

You heard it straight from the source. The goal is “shifting the culture” so that Canadians get used to wearing a mask in public. They would rather not push a law to mandate it, but instead get people to accept it internally.

Perhaps we are just animals who need to be trained in a new behaviour. Seems to be where things are going.

Why they would prefer to “shift the culture” as opposed to making such things mandatory? Quite simply, less backlash or chances to be challenged if the masses can be manipulated into doing it willingly.

Ottawa announces new mandatory mask rules
NOW PLAYING
Transports Minister Marc Garneau says masks will be made mandatory for passengers and workers in several transportation industries.
Should masks be worn inside shared homes?

> She said Public Health will be posting the updated recommendations on medical masks online today, noting that the recommendation isn’t mandatory and will allow for public health officers across Canada to consider their area’s needs.

> In the hours after her announcement, public health officers from various provinces began echoing the recommendation. Dr. David Williams, Ontario’s Chief Medical Officer of Health, said that as people continue to enter public settings they should be wearing non-medical masks.

"In certain situations such as transit where you cannot be assured that you'll be able to guarantee that two metre or six foot distance, and we are recommending, strongly recommending the use of [a] facial covering, non-medical, in that time so as to prevent any further transmission to others and to respect their space as well as your space in that regard," Williams said.

Quebec's Deputy Premier Genevieve Guilbault also encouraged her province's residents to adopt the habit of wearing a non-medical mask when in public.

"It's a new habit that we're going to have to develop and cultivate. It's not instinctive for us and perhaps doesn't come naturally for us yet to wear a face covering when you leave your home, but we must absolutely develop that habit," she said, speaking in French.

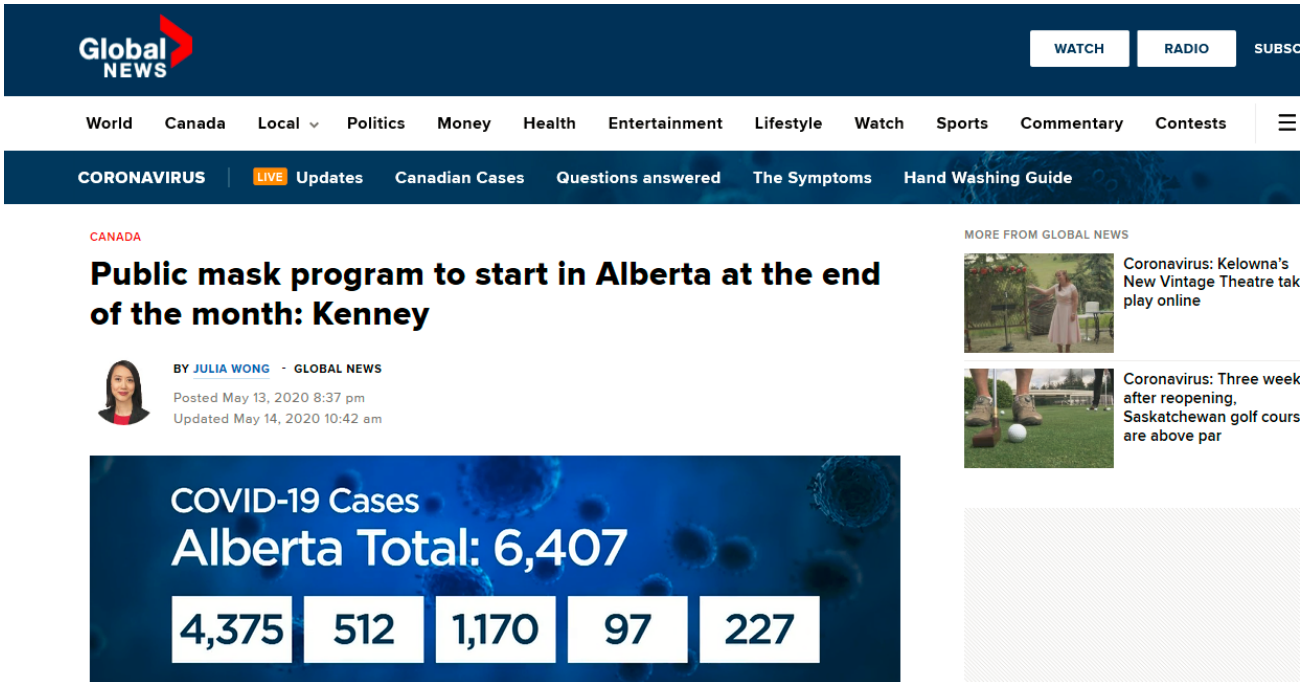
Infectious Disease Specialist Dr. Abdu Sharkawy said the latest recommendation is a prudent one, but cautioned that Canadians should not ease up on other public health efforts.

Whether they are complicit in the scam, or just useful idiots, Provincial politicians and officials are once again parroting the talking points of Theresa Tam. This comes despite her repeatedly giving contradictory information.

Forget the conflicting advice. Forget the computer modelling that has been laughably wrong. Forget about the people who have recovered and internally developed antibodies. Don't stop to think that if this virus (assuming it exists) was anywhere near as deadly as predicted, people would be dropping like flies.

4. Alberta Begins Mask Program



Quebec is asking its residents to wear a mask if they leave their house. Alberta's chief medical officer of health Dr. Deena Hinshaw said her recommendation is for Albertans to wear a mask if they are going somewhere where they will be two metres from another person.

Hinshaw also stressed that wearing a mask does not replace public health measures.

"Even if someone is wearing a mask, it's still really important to try and maintain that distancing as much as possible. There may be a mistaken impression that if a group of friends want to get together and have a party, as long as everyone is wearing a cloth mask, they can do so and there's no problem at all," she said.

Yes, people should be wearing masks, but don't assume you would otherwise still enjoy your freedoms.

Premier Francois Legault, his health minister and the public health director all donned masks as they entered a media briefing in Quebec City – the first time they have done so. “A good way to greatly reduce the contagion is to wear a mask,” Legault said. “We strongly recommend that you do so.

But Legault said the province won’t make masks mandatory for now, unlike such places as France and New York State, where they are required while using public transit.

Legault said the government doesn’t want to discriminate against those who are unable to buy or make their own masks. Legault also said it would be difficult legally to order that masks be worn, because they haven’t been proven to be 100 per cent effective in stopping the spread of the virus.

But Montreal civil rights lawyer Julius Grey said the mask doesn’t need to be perfectly effective to be made mandatory. It is enough that the benefit be “reasonably probable” to gain an exemption under Section 1 of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms – which outlines a balance between the rights of the individual and the interests of society, he said.

Grey said forcing people to wear masks might infringe on individual rights but it would be considered a "reasonable limit" as long as the mask rules were not too draconian.

"It's only common sense," Grey said. "These are charter rights, but they can be limited for something as serious as COVID." Grey noted that the Quebec government's own secularism law prohibits certain public servants deemed to be in positions of authority – including teachers, judges and police officers – from wearing religious symbols, such as turbans, kippas and hijabs.

"How is it they can prohibit the hijab, but they can't mandate and enforce the mask for public safety?" Grey asked with a laugh.

Grey noted that most physical distancing measures introduced since COVID-19 raise charter issues. He said that's likely to repeat when a vaccine for coronavirus emerges, given there are many opposed to vaccination despite the need to protect society as a whole.

Quebec's public health department last month began offering instructions for homemade masks. And last week, Montreal's transit authority announced it would distribute 600,000 masks in the coming weeks to transit users, saying they would not be obligatory because it wouldn't be able to enforce the rule.

Quebec public health director Dr. Horacio Arruda said Tuesday he wouldn't hesitate to make masks compulsory if necessary. "But when we make it mandatory, we will make sure that people who cannot afford them cannot be discriminated against compared to those who can," Arruda told reporters.

So it's not being made mandatory in Quebec, at least for now. However the goal is to apply social pressure to people into conforming, to get the public to force skeptics into compliance.

Masks are being given out for free. Of course they are. If you want someone to submit to absurd demands, then make it as easy as possible for them to do so.

Interestingly, this puts Quebec in the strange position of proposing mandatory masks for health reasons, even as they banned face coverings for being a security risk, and diluting their culture.

It's rather disturbing to see this article. While it is cloaked in the language of "strongly recommended", it also clearly talks about making it mandatory, and whether it would survive a Charter challenge in court.

The province also announced new rules for wearing face masks.

“When outside of the home, and in any location in which physical distancing of 2 metres is not possible, people must wear a face covering that covers their mouth and nose,” the government said in a news release. “Effective June 9, everyone entering a building open to the general public must wear a face covering. Children under the age of two, children of any age while attending licensed early education and childcare facilities, and those unable to wear face coverings due to medical issues are exempt from these requirements.”

On June 5th, the New Brunswick Government announced that masks would be mandatory for entering any public building as of June 9th. That was reversed a day later, which sounds great. However, the reversal was not one of principle, but of putting extra burdens on people. Potentially it could still happen later.

Face masks mandatory in Cote-Saint-Luc
NOW PLAYING
Cote-Saint-Luc had adopted what is believed to be the first bylaw of its kind in Quebec: the mandatory wearing of face masks.

MONTREAL — A municipality on the island of Montreal is boasting that it has become the first jurisdiction in Canada to make wearing a mask mandatory for anyone entering a business or a city-owned building.

Cote St-Luc Mayor Mitchell Brownstein said his council passed the bylaw on Monday, and businesses have two weeks to comply. Fines for businesses and individuals who violate the bylaw range from $100 to $500, he said.

Brownstein said all business owners will be required to post a sign provided by the city alerting clients to wear a mask upon entry. He said exceptions will be made for people with asthma or other health conditions or disabilities preventing them from wearing masks.

He said his office researched the situation across the country and found no other town or province that has gone this far. “We want to make Cote St-Luc the safest place for people to shop, and hopefully the provinces in Canada will follow,” Brownstein said in an interview Tuesday.

On Monday, Ottawa’s transit commission voted to make mask-wearing on public transit mandatory starting June 15, but officials said they will not prohibit unmasked people from boarding.

Cote St-Luc has gone further and made masks mandatory. Let’s see how long this lasts.

Even within businesses, this mind control can be implemented. By denying people access without masks, such as Whole Foods, Longo’s, it makes submission more and more likely Granted, retailers may ease up. However, it’s chilling to see them risk losing customers to this hoax. But as long as the businesses are doing it voluntarily, it’s not government overreach.

An article by VICE inadvertently looks at the issue in a different light. Could demanding your own subjugation be viewed as a human right worth striking over?

And no, this is by no means limited to Canada. Parts of the United States and other countries are also implementing various degrees of the same program.

New measures introduced for non-medical masks or face coverings in the Canadian transportation system

COVID-19 is a global public health challenge that has changed the daily lives of people around the world, and ensuring the safety and security of Canadians remains the Government of Canada's top priority.
Today, the Minister of Transport, the Honourable Marc Garneau, announced new measures requiring all air passengers to have a non-medical mask or face covering to cover their mouth and nose during travel. These measures come into effect at noon EDT on April 20, 2020.

> COVID-19 is a global public health challenge that has changed the daily lives of people around the world, and ensuring the safety and security of Canadians remains the Government of Canada's top priority.

Today, the Minister of Transport, the Honourable Marc Garneau, announced new measures requiring all air passengers to have a non-medical mask or face covering to cover their mouth and nose during travel. These measures come into effect at noon EDT on April 20, 2020.

Domestic travel has now been somewhat reopened. The catch? Submitting to wearing a mask. This on top of the other nonsense that is pushed on passengers.

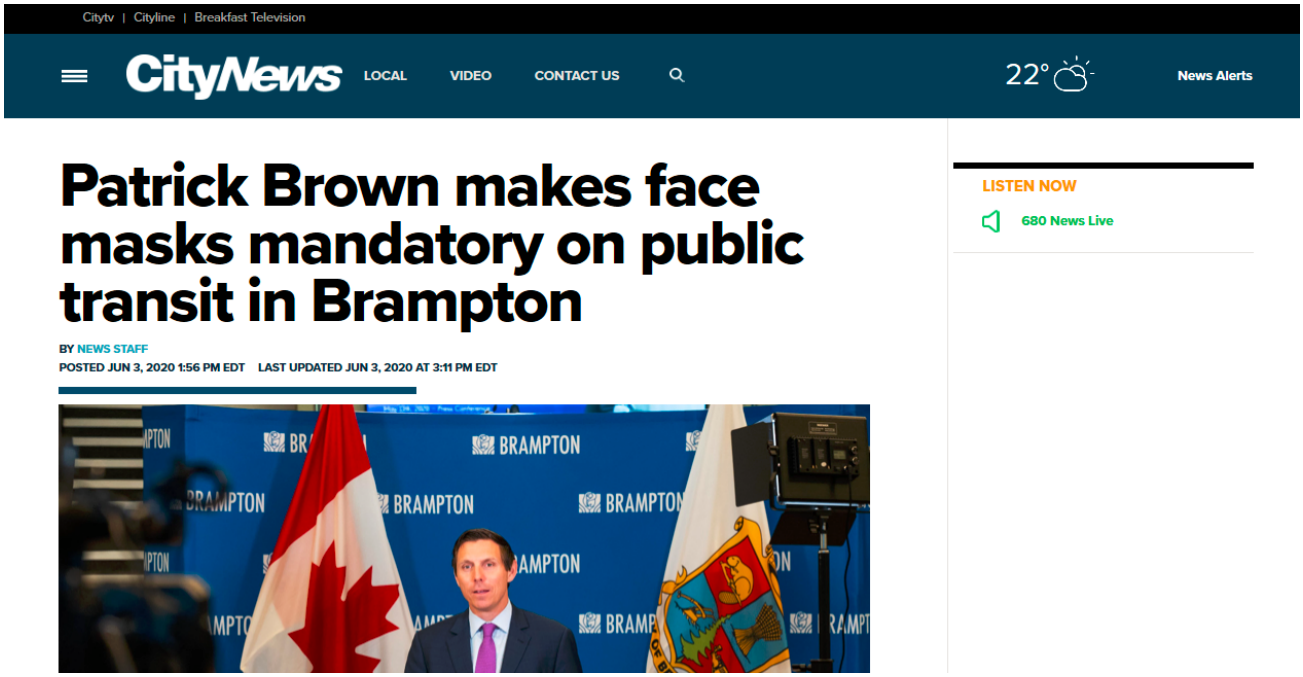
What you need to know before you travel:

- All passengers will be screened. All passengers will be asked health and safety screening questions prior to boarding. Should a passenger fail to pass the screening, they will be denied boarding.

- All passengers will be required to wear face masks at all times. For the safety and well-being of our passengers and employees, we require all passengers to wear masks over their mouth and nose while at all times; this includes check-in, during the boarding process, during the trip, and while disembarking on all Ebus routes. If a passenger does not have their own mask, they will be available for purchase. If a passenger refuses to wear a mask, they will be denied boarding.

Facemasks are mandatory for travel and will be available for $3 plus tax. Passengers can purchase them from our ticket offices, from our Passenger Experience Representatives, and from Drivers.

This is also being done by ebus.



Brampton Mayor Patrick Brown, who “identifies” as a conservative, announced on June 3rd that face masks will be mandatory for public transit. It was such as urgent matter it won’t actually be implemented until July 2nd.

This is problem isn’t just in Canada. Take a look at our Southern neighbour, and you will see some of the same behaviour.

Certainly images like this (forcing people off buses), create bad optics for officials, but there are other ways to achieve the same goals.

Not only have Canadian officials been laughably incompetent, but so have the American ones. Fauci of course is the public face, but the Surgeon General seems to toe the line. However, one might ask if this had been calculated ahead of time: to appear to be unprepared in order to frighten the public.

To long to go into here, but the computer modelling used to make these predictions has been debunked. In fact, the researchers have a long history of overinflated predictions. To be clear, modelling isn't proof of anything — it's guesswork. Yet major decisions are made because of it.

For a great summary of this, Jill Colton did a video on it. She drops a lot of truth bombs in it.

12. Shift To Race Riot Psy-Op

The murder of George Floyd by Derek Chauvin made international news. The video is still widely available online, which is strange considering the censorship levels that YouTube and other outlets engage in.

Another obvious thing: it wasn't Derek Chauvin that did this. Look at the side by side pictures (one of the perpetrator, the other of Derek Chauvin's mugshots. They look nothing alike, yet the media is being silent on it. Chauvin isn't the man responsible, and in retrospect, we don't even know that Floyd is dead, or that it was even him.

One would think that having the police department burned down would cause someone to speak out publicly that the man who allegedly killed Floyd wasn't the officer in question. If telling the crowd that "it wasn't one of our people" doesn't work, what approach would you take?

Of course, don't expect the mainstream media to cover this story properly. Here is Jennifer Mayerle perpetuating the coronavirus psy-op with her mask, while she covers the George Floyd psy-op in her talk. Mayerle clearly has trouble breathing with her mask on (just listen to her), but the act must keep going.

This is from NBC News. How messed up is it to be forced play along with the “pandemic” psy-op, while being charged with serious crimes resulting from the Floyd psy-op?

See how effective this has been? By intentionally shutting down entire sectors of society, governments have made people desperate to return to normal. And they can, if a few freedoms are permanently given away.

Now that the media attention is focused on rioting (from the psy-op listed earlier), the media has a new crisis to focus on. Wearing masks is “the new normal”. We need to move on and focus on the systemic racism that is breaking our nations apart.

Forget all that "social distancing" that was all the rage before. Forget about staying at home whenever possible, and avoiding crowds. None of that matters anymore. Protesting is totally fine, just WEAR A MASK.

14. Protesting Exemption For Racism

This is disturbing on many levels. Then man pretending to be Trudeau, and his adoring public, are wearing useless masks to protect themselves from a fake pandemic. While doing that, they are taking a knee to atone for the non-existent problem of systemic racism.

Of course, the real Trudeau has worn blackface several times, and openly calls Canadians "racist".

It's hard to tell how many people actually are taking this seriously. Nonetheless, it is chilling to see Canada, or anyone, go down this path.

Nonetheless, there has been a very successful bait and switch performed here. The "planned-emic" started out in slow motion, but then more and more rights were taken away. The economy is slowing being allowed to reopen, but in a controlled fashion. The new normal is one where face coverings will be expected, if not required or legislated.

Of course the obvious question has to be asked: why in the world would Tam, or anyone RECOMMEND that people attending protests on these loaded subjects conceal their faces? Is the goal to create anarchy and chaos?

15. Make Public Submission Easy/Affordable

> “But we will be able to provide a limited number of masks for people for the foreseeable future that can help them if they’re going out, for example, on their weekly grocery shopping visit or if they have to take public transit and they don’t have another face covering.”

Alberta plans, at least for now, to make free masks available virtually everywhere to encourage their use. Make Albertans think these free gifts are for their benefit.

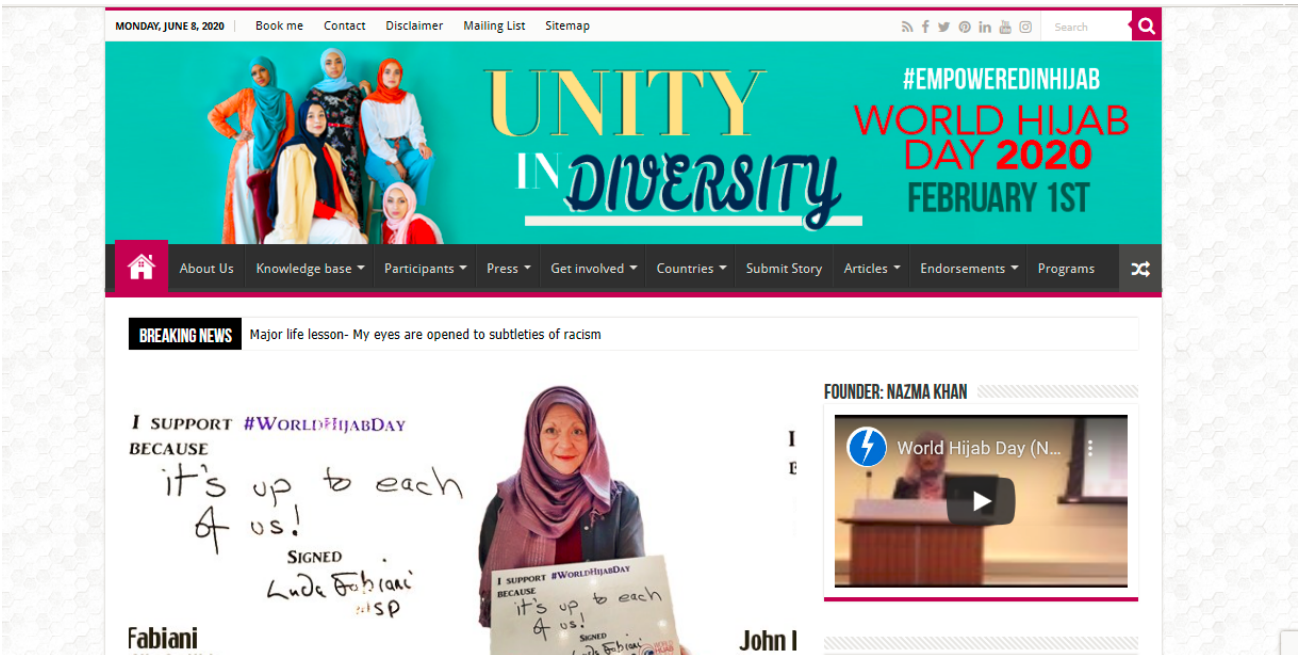
There's actually a trend that is emerging: deny a person access to a place of business, but provide free masks at the entrance. The reason? To make it "easier" for people to go about their day. Just one catch: they must agree to a face covering.

The plan of course being to change behaviour and culture in the long term.

16. Parallel With Islamic Head Coverings

Okay, we finally get to the topic of contrasting the forced wearing of face masks with forcing girls and women to wear the hijab. There are a lot of the same techniques at play here.

- Wear a hijab as part of 1 world vision
- Wear a hijab to show you're not a bigot
- Wear a hijab as an act of solidarity
- Wear a hijab to avoid harassment/rape
- Wear a hijab to avoid being arrested
- Wear a hijab to avoid being killed



World Hijab Day is a real thing: it's to celebrate the head coverings, even for people who aren't Muslims. Of course, this all looks fine and dandy. Never mind the very real fact that in many countries, women don't have the choice, but are forced to wear one.

Austria's president suggested that every woman should wear a headscarf to fight Islamophobia
Austrian president: One day all women will be asked to wear headscarves

Then there is this approach: if you won't wear a hijab in order to avoid harassment or sexual assault, do it to avoid Islamophobia and show tolerance. Remember, not all Muslims are bad people, and you should be more accepting of them.

Yes, wearing a hijab to show solidarity with the group is something that has been suggested by both Muslims, and non-Muslim useful idiots.

European girls in Vienna are wearing headscarves to avoid assaults by Muslim migrants

Marcus Franz, a physician and former MP from the conservative Austrian People's Party created outrage on social media after he said the non-Muslim white European girls in Vienna have started to wear Islamic headscarves so as to prevent street harassment and assault by male Muslim migrants.

During an appearance last week on OE24, a local Austrian television station, Franz stated, "Speak with women on the street, speak with children, speak with young girls. I myself know fathers who, when their daughters come home in the evening when they live in the problem area, give them headscarves so they won't be recognized as Austrians. I know this personally, in the 15th district of Vienna, this is a fact."

According to the EU Times, even in 2016, Austrian girls were putting the hijab on to prevent assault and harassment from Muslim men. Despite the girls not being Muslim, or having anything to do with that culture, they WILLINGLY put the headscarf on in order to protect themselves. Many would say that not allowing such incompatible people in would be a great idea. Many would support deporting such people. Instead, the pressure is put on locals to conform for their own safety.

In other countries, women are actually arrested for refusing to wear the hijab. Punishment can come in the forms of a fine, lashings, imprisonment, or a combination thereof. Remember, in the West, people are told to embrace the hijab as empowerment.

Not the first honour killing to happen. A 16 year old was killed by her brother and father, at least partially, for refusing to wear a hijab. This happened in Canada.

Many women will say they wear it willingly, but are they really? Some will yes, but is fear of harassment, abuse, rape, or arrest contributing to many more wearing it? Is it really a choice when it is made under duress? How much is due to family pressure?

17. Consequence Of Mask Refusal

The comparison of face masks to the Muslim head scarf may seem absurd on the surface, but consider what is happening already in parts of the West.

- People are being fined for refusing to wear one
- People are prohibited from taking public transit
- People are prohibited from flying without a mask
- People are prohibited from entering certain stores
- Certain jobs now require a mask at all times

Certainly, there isn't an exact duplication, but there are parallels. Even in the West, women began "willingly" wearing the headscarf to avoid physical and emotional attacks.

The virus mask, on the other hand, seems to be enforced with a more Chinese style "social credit" type of way. Restrict things that the public is allowed to access without it.

In both cases, mental manipulation is required to sustain it.
